

Washington D.C. Statehood?

POINT:

No Taxation without Representation

COUNTER-POINT:

No Extra Representation from those who receive Most of the Taxation

Washington, D.C. has way too much representation via Lobbyists. If anything D.C. should lose its only Congressional Representative as D.C. already has most of the lobbyists and D.C. voters receive far and way more of the taxes paid than any other district in America. That one, D.C. representative, will already be biased to vote for more spending as the majority of his/her constituents will receive far more of the taxes to be spent.
